Avalon Harbor is a quiet lakeside town where everybody has known everyone else for generations. Shayna Lynburgh has spent the summer before her first year of college watching her mother succumb to cancer and working toward her dream of becoming a journalist. Lonely and bored, she longs for a distraction. Val Alston is a nationally renowned poet. As the new visiting college professor, he moves into town with his marriage on the verge of collapse and a blossoming addiction to alcohol. When Val and Shayna cross paths, they begin an obsessive affair that has the entire town watching and talking. As Shayna gradually becomes aware of Val's inner demons, she is faced with making difficult decisions about her own role in Val's alcohol abuse and his professional collapse. The consequences of the choices she makes sets into motion a chain reaction of events that will shake the small town she's known all her life to its core.

A Chorus of Swans brings together a loosely linked trilogy of Gabriel Stone's science-fiction short story monologues, each with an ecological theme at its heart, a twist in its tail, and occasionally its tongue pressed firmly in its cheek. Throwing Stones - Even when you're in the deepest of deep space, in a smashed ship with almost no air, there's always a chance that somebody, or something, will figure out a way to get you home. A Bird in the Hand - The sorry tale of what became of the last of the fabulous glassbirds, and why it's a good idea to read the instruction manual. Last CitiXen of Earth - Who mourns for a dead planet when there's none left who remember it alive? What if that planet isn't quite as dead as we'd thought?

Inspired by a visit to her hometown after a long absence, Marks reveals a world where the candy dish is always full but the banks of the flooded creek are mighty slippery. ## You Know Where We Were

From the first edition of The Fannie Farmer Cookbook to the latest works by today's celebrity chefs, cookbooks reflect more than just passing culinary fads. As historical artifacts, they offer a unique perspective on the cultures that produced them. In Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking, Jessamyn Neuhaus offers a perceptive and piquant analysis of the tone and content of American cookbooks published between the 1790s and the 1960s, adroitly uncovering the cultural assumptions and anxieties—particularly about women and domesticity—they contain. Neuhaus's in-depth survey of these cookbooks questions the supposedly straightforward lessons about food preparation they imparted. While she finds that cookbooks aimed to make readers—mainly white, middle-class women—into effective, modern-age homemakers who saw joy, not drudgery, in their domestic tasks, she notes that the phenomenal popularity of Peg Bracken's 1960 cookbook, The I Hate to Cook Book, attests to the limitations of this kind of indoctrination. At the same time, she explores the proliferation of bachelor cookbooks aimed at "the man in the kitchen" and the biases they display about male and female abilities, tastes, and responsibilities. Neuhaus also addresses the impact of World War II rationing on homefront cuisine; the introduction of new culinary technologies, gourmet sensibilities, and ethnic foods into American kitchens; and developments in the cookbook industry since the 1960s. More than a history of the cookbook, Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking provides an absorbing and enlightening account of gender and food in modern America.

Are you ever tired of the same old food day in and day out ? Tired of ordering out because you don't want to cook at times? Well in this book, Chef Randy R. Duke gives you plenty of ideas on what to cook for Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner. In this Cookbook Chef Duke gives you over 150 recipes you can cook from scratch to make you feel as empowered like a real Chef, even if you don't really cook that often. You follow the recipe and you will have your family and friends eating like they are in a five star restaurant. Randy R. Duke is not just a Chef, he is also a Chocolatier and Caterer. He started out as a young man watching his Mother Marie Duke and his Grandmother Rosemarie LaMantia cook in the kitchen and he enjoyed it to. He would love to help as well as eat whatever they made. As he got older he started to read a lot of cookbooks his family had in the house and would try making things, asking his Mom or Grandmother for help with measurements and so on, until he got the hang of things as he gotten older. At the age of fourteen years old he got a job as a Stock boy at a local Deli his Uncle Danny LaMantia, worked at. As the years went on, under the supervision and training his Uncle Danny gave him, he learned the Deli business and quite frankly enjoyed it and is still in the Deli business till this day. Randy R. Duke hopes everyone enjoys this Cookbook as much as he enjoyed writing it. Randy is often asked for advice and he sums it up for everyone, "If you have a passion for something in your life and you know down deep your good at it whatever it may be, GO FOR IT, Don't sit there and talk about it, DO IT. Go for your dreams because only you can write your future." Randy R. Duke Lives in Staten Island, New York.
