Please Do Not Call Me a "Christian" invites readers to immerse themselves in the truths the author has received directly from God. Using the insights he has received, in combination and conversation with passages from the Scriptures, the author paints a passionately rendered painting of the spiritual landscape. He describes the mighty acts of God with the same vigor as he illuminates Satan's strivings to deceive people into trusting him rather than God. In each of the chapters in Please Do Not Call Me a "Christian," the author speaks directly to the reader, offering revealed insights aligned with citations from the Bible. In its exploration of the connections between these insights and the biblical text, each chapter produces a deeper and richer message to help to guide the reader's life of faith. Jill and Donna are cousins and lifelong best friends but could not be more different. Despite their contrasting characters, fiercely independent, dark, street-smart Jill and pretty, blond, alluring Donna are very close, attending college together in Ann Arbor and then moving to New York City after graduation. Ultimately veering onto different life paths, they both experience love, betrayal, friendship, pain, independence, and fear. Though their fates differ as widely as their personalities, both reflect the danger that sex poses for women during a time in which abortions are illegal: an affair could destroy a woman's life, and a chance encounter or a night of love could be a matter of life and death. Spanning 20 years and teeming

The Living Age

This is a small history of the life of a girl born in 1953. She was raised by her grandmother. Back in those days, there were things we could not ask, which means there were things we did not know. They say you learn from your mistakes. There are a lot of things that could be avoided through communication and listening; without it, a child could feel like he or she isthey are not loved by their family. This will cause you to go through life with blinders on, but sometimes, love will prevail. My timeline started when I was four years old. This is when my father died. He died in a car accident, and he and some of his friends were partying and drinking. They all got in the car with their girlfriends; my father was cheating on my mother. Nonetheless, it was six of them three men and three ladies. They were speeding and drunk. The driver lost control of the car and ran off the road into a canal, and the car ended up in the canal of water . My father was in the backseat of the car; he died, and so did his girlfriend. Wasnt that a blimp? He left Mama and six children behind because of his foolishness. This was a disaster for my mother. It was so hard for her, but she did what she had to do to keep us together as a family. We were so young, from four months to sixteen years. Mother did not get along with my dads mother, so she did not have much help. Her mother stayed far away from where we lived, but if or when she needed her mother, she was there. Eventually, my mother was forced to move to where her mother lived so she could help her raise us children. We were raised rough. My daddys parents had a farm that we were raised working on itI loved it. By the way, I am a twin. Everything my twin did, I did it too. I and my twin are oneyou cant get between us unless you want to fight. We are identical twins. My mother had another set of twins; they were boy and girl, Erick and Eva. We moved to Chestnut Grove. My uncle and aunt came and moved us all. No one wanted to move, but we had no choice. It was not open for discussion. We were brought to a strange town where we knew no one. Mom was very unhappy. She tried to move back but was brought right back. After a few attempts, she gave up and settled in. Mom confined herself to her room for quite a while; she was drowning in sorrowshe was drowning . We lost our mother for a while; we had only ourselves and Grandmother. One thing my mother always insisted on was that we all stayed together. She always had the satisfaction in knowing that her children were always there with her. We know she loved us just as we loved her only my grandmother was running the show. Its been five years now since we made the move. Mom is straight, and we all have adjusted to our new home. My granny has some very strict rules, which were too hard to follow. We were having serious problems. We were not allowed to go anywhere unless it was church. Dont get me wrong, I love church, but there are other things that I would like to have done also, like going to a friends house. We all call it the jailhouse; we stayed on lockdown around there. After we (me and my twin) gotreached sixteen years old, things were getting rough around there. Some of us began to speak up for ourselves. With that, there were major problems and repercussions. There were a lot of things that we should have known about the facts of life that we were never told. We were not able to discuss sex at all. If we asked questions about sex, we were called hoes and sluts and were accused of having sex so no questions, no problems. One day, we were looking at a soap show on TV, and Snapper kissed Jill, and because they were kissing, my granny turned the TV off and called us hot in the rump. She said we were sitting there making our private parts jump. I tried my best not to laugh, but I could not hold it. I burst out laughing. My sisters got scared of what my granny was going to do to me. I looked at

"In Pursuit . . ." reinvents the life of Katherine Mansfield (1888-1923), the modernist writer who revolutionized the short story, created the only writing Virginia Woolf was ever jealous of, and was consumed by tuberculosis at thirty-four. Intertwined into the story are Katherine's letter and journal writings that reveal her volatile relationships with her husband, her caregiver Ida, and her extraordinary passion for life as she fights against a disease that saps her energy and steals her time to write. The story begins in London where Mansfield has married her long-time lover John Middleton Murry. Soon after, on her thirtieth birthday, she is diagnosed with tuberculosis and told she has a few years to live if she stops writing, moves to a sanatorium, and promises to live a quiet, passive life. Too young for such a prognosis she attempts a home cure that fails. Then, a wandering consumptive with a fierce grip on life and her writing tools, she travels from London to Paris, to the Riviera and to the Alps in pursuit of a cure, not only for herself, but through her work, perhaps, for others."In Pursuit . . . The Katherine Mansfield Story Retold" is an absorbing tale of desire, impermanence, and atonement. A haunting exploration of one woman's powerful determination to live a full and challenging life in spite of the limitations forced upon her by illness.

The Korean demilitarized zone might be among the most heavily guarded places on earth, but it also provides passage for thousands of defectors, spies, political emissaries, war prisoners, activists, tourists, and others testing the limits of Korean division. This book focuses on a diverse selection of inter-Korean border crossers and the citizenship they acquire based on emotional affiliation rather than constitutional delineation. Using their physical bodies and emotions as optimal frontiers, these individuals resist the state's right to draw geopolitical borders and define their national identity. Drawing on sources that range from North Korean documentary films, museum exhibitions, and theater productions to protester perspectives and interviews with South Korean officials and activists, this volume recasts the history of Korean division and draws a much more nuanced portrait of
